ENVIRONMENT & SOCIAL

While taking part in any excursion we kindly ask all guests to respect the environment and the local customs of Vietnam. During any excursion to religious, cultural, or historical sites, please adhere to local customs and cover your shoulders and knees, otherwise you could be denied entry.

Do not purchase shells, coral, or other environmentally sensitive items, which you might not even be allowed to bring to your home country. They are beautiful, but they look better in their natural setting from which they come. By purchasing items like these you are promoting an unsustainable trade in objects that can take generations or longer to develop.

Join us to learn about our ongoing endangered green sea turtle conservation efforts. Discover how mother green sea turtles carefully lay their eggs at our resort beach and throughout the Con Dao archipelago between mid-March and late October. Find out how predators, poaching and other natural elements can endanger the incubation process and how we're helping to avoid these risks.

Visit the "Let's Get Cracking" center, which, in cooperation with the National Park Authority provides a sanctuary for incubation of sea turtle eggs and when the time arrives the ethical hatchling release directly from the resort beach.

We'll share some of the learnings our hosts have made by carefully studying and monitoring incubation conditions throughout the day, every day of the turtle nesting season enabling hatching rates of over 90%, around twice as high as what occurs naturally. Some days, our turtle clutches even achieve 100% hatching success!
